Former Rain is a book to help encourage you to live a more prosperous life according to God's Word but on a different level.

Ms. Miller has taken a different approach to spreading the good news. She has created four characters that are intertwined by their lifestyles and how they all become acquainted with the Lord. Nina and Isaac are characters that are drug dealer and drug dealer's girlfriend respectively. Isaac is a man who is never told no. If he is, he takes care of that person in his own special way. That includes Nina who has decided she has had enough and leaves Isaac. When he catches up with her he learns that Nina has been keeping something from him and He's bound to get to the bottom of it. Nina is rescued by a lady who feels that everyone deserves a second chance at life and she introduces Nina to a Man who can take care of all her needs. Nina is receptive to the wonderful change in her life but it will take a traumatic experience to convince Isaac.

Elizabeth and Kenneth had been married for five years and although they had two beautiful daughters, the marriage was much less that a happy one. Kenneth follows in his father's footsteps by cheating on Elizabeth but Elizabeth is not going down without a fight. She still loves her husband in spite of his infidelity and she vows to keep her family together. Through infidelity, hardship, and a failing singing career, it takes a tragedy, the love and support of family and friends, and faith in God, to bring forth a miracle in their lives.

Ms. Miller had me hooked from the first page. A welcome change from the norm of Christian books, it is a story of everyday life told in a Christian manner. It will make you laugh, cry, get disgusted and cheer on the good guys. The first in a trilogy, I can't wait for the sequels. Ms. Miller is definitely one to watch! I give it stars!
